Bojarite is a supergene mineral formed as the result of alteration of chanabayite in the contact zone between a deeply altered guano deposit and chalcopyrite-bearing amphibole gabbro. This discovery is the ninth new mineral found in the guano deposit at Pabellón de Pica. It is worth noting that another mineral from that same occurrence, chanabayite, was selected as the Mineral of the Year in 2015.

REFERENCES