

The Mineralogical Society of America is composed of individuals interested in mineralogy, crystallography, petrology, and geochemistry. Founded in 1919, the Society promotes, through education and research, the understanding and application of mineralogy by industry, universities, government, and the public. Membership benefits include special subscription rates for American Mineralogist as well as other journals, a 25% discount on Reviews in Mineralogy & Geochemistry series and Monographs, Elements, reduced registration fees for MSA meetings and short courses, and participation in a society that supports the many facets of mineralogy.

The Mineralogical Society of Great Britain and Ireland is an international society for all those working in the mineral sciences. The Society aims to advance the knowledge of the science of mineralogy and its application to other subjects, including crystallography, geochemistry, petrology, environmental science and economic geology. The Society furthers its aims through scientific meetings and the publication of scientific journals, books and monographs. The Society publishes Mineralogical Magazine and Clay Minerals. Students receive the first year of membership free of charge. All members receive Elements.

The Clay Minerals Society (CMS) began as the Clay Minerals Committee of the US National Academy of Sciences - National Research Council in 1952. In 1962, the CMS was incorporated with the primary purpose of stimulating research and disseminating information relating to all aspects of clay science and technology. The CMS holds an annual meeting, workshop, and field trips, and publishes Clays and Clay Minerals and the CMS Workshop Lectures series. Membership benefits include reduced registration fees to the annual meeting, discounts on the CMS Workshop Lectures, and Elements.

The Geochemical Society (GS) is an international organization founded in 1955 for students and scientists involved in the practice, study and teaching of geochemistry. Our programs include co-hosting the annual Goldschmidt Conference™, editorial oversight of Geochimica et Cosmochimica Acta (GCA), supporting geochemical symposia through our Meeting Assistance Program, and supporting student development through our Student Travel Grant Program. GS annually recognizes excellence in geochemistry through its medals, lectures and awards. Members receive a subscription to Elements, special member rates for GCA and G-cubed, and publication and conference discounts.

The International Association of Geochemistry (IAGC) has been a pre-eminent international geochemical organization for over 40 years. Its principal objectives are to foster cooperation in the advancement of applied geochemistry by sponsoring specialist scientific symposia and the activities organized by its working groups and by supporting its journal, Applied Geochemistry. The administration and activities of IAGC are conducted by its Council, comprising an Executive and ten ordinary members. Day-to-day administration is performed through the IAGC business office.

The Association of Applied Geochemists is an international organization founded in 1970 that specializes in the field of applied geochemistry. It aims to advance the science of geochemistry as it relates to exploration and the environment, further the common interests of exploration geochemists, facilitate the acquisition and distribution of scientific knowledge, promote the exchange of information, and encourage research and development. AAG membership includes the AAG journal, Geochemistry: Exploration, Environment, Analysis; the AAG newsletter, EXPLORE; and Elements.

The Deutsche Mineralogische Gesellschaft (German Mineralogical Society) was founded in 1908 to "promote mineralogy and all its subdisciplines in teaching and research as well as the personal relationships among all members." Its great tradition is reflected in the list of honorary fellows, who include M. v. Lue, G. v. Tschermak, P. Eskola, C.W. Correns, P. Ramdohr, and H. Strunz. Today, the Society especially tries to support young researchers, e.g. to attend conferences and short courses. Membership benefits include the European Journal of Mineralogy, the DMG Forum, GMit, and Elements.
